BITTEN BY DOG; HER RESCUER BITTEN, TOO

FRANCES LENTINI

Attacked by two dogs in Dover street, she fell across the car tracks. Miss Elizabeth Henson, Roxbury girl, coming to her rescue, was attacked by one of the dogs and severely bitten, while the other girl was lacerated by the other animal. Both were taken to the hospital, where ugly wounds were cauterized.

A ten-year-old girl ran screaming across Dover street, South End. Two dogs bounded after her. She fell on the car tracks. The dogs pounced on her.

BOSTON COAL DUG FROM ROADWAY

Archbald, Pa. March 21.—Investigation of the coal frauds in the Pennsylvania anthracite fields by the New York American discloses that the "Independent" firm of Staples & Bell, of Scranton and Boston, is shipping a lot of coal from waste piles.

Harry Staples is in charge, with offices in the Moore Building, Scranton. The other partner, A. W. Bell, is in Boston, in Milk street. Stuff that goes out from here is distributed over New England. Some of the shipments, according to reports, are of low standard.

Miss Elizabeth Henson, twenty-four, of No. 14 Larkin street, Roxbury, passing at the time, attempted to drive the dogs away. They turned and leaped at her throat.

One snuck up, fangs into the rescuer's left wrist. Blood spurted from the jagged wound. The other tore at the child's right arm and knee.

Pedestrians rallying to the cries for help scared the dogs. They disappeared down Shawmut avenue. The police are searching for them.

Miss Henson and the child were taken to City Hospital. There the child said she was Frances Lentini of No. 714 Dover street.

"I was playing on the sidewalk when the dogs came running at me from a doorway," the child asserted. "My brother tells me that one of them is kept locked in a house all the time because he is so wild."

Doctors at the hospital outcried both bites to prevent rabies. The police fear that one or both dogs are of low standard.

VANDALS IN BELMONT CHURCH

Destruction of sacred candles and candlesticks and other vandalism to the extent of $300 damage was discovered today in St. Joseph's Catholic Church on Common street, Belmont.

Theft was another object of the vandals. They broke open the poor box and stole the charitable offerings it contained.

Three half-dollars, evidently part of the poor box contribution, were found in front of the altar.

Shury was made by forcing the Indian Quits Prison Rich After 25 Yrs; Was Innocent

Washington, March 21.—How a half-breed Cherokee Indian, Charner Tidwell, spent twenty-five years in Federal prison, before being released on a harmless murder charge, was revealed today by the Department of Justice.

Freely by a woman's deathbed confession, the former prisoner is now enjoying the wealth of inherited oil lands.

"The Lord has been wanting me to tell it for years, and I am afraid he won't forgive me for not telling it," reads the affidavit of Mrs. James Brown, dying wife of the murdered man.

The man who committed the crime is said to have been a former lover of Mrs. Brown.

SACCO HURT IN FALL FROM BED

Nicola Sacco leaped out of his bed at the Psychopathic Hospital early today and sustained wounds on the face and scalp.

Dr. Lattrell, physician in charge, denied it was an effort on the part of Sacco to kill himself.

"The action was due to nervousness," he said. "His fall against a heavy hospital chair. As soon as the superficial scalp and face wounds were treated he returned to bed and slept soundly."

Pulse, temperature and respiration are normal, it was reported, and when he awoke Sacco ate heartily. He appears to have recovered from the effects of his hunger strike in the jail at Dedham.

GIRL AIDS IN AUTO HOLDUP

A woman today drove a closed car at breakneck speed through Boston streets to Newton, while three male accomplices robbed Robert Capone of Everett of $11 in bills and $5 in coins.

Capone, who is proprietor of the March 18th team at No. 125 Myrtle street, was walking toward the Public Garden along Charles street, when two men jumped in front of him and drew pistols.

"They forced me to enter a machine driving up to the curb. The woman was at the wheel. Another man was with her. They shot away at such a pace Capone feared they would smother running onto Beacon street, he claims to have lost consciousness shortly after.

FOUND WITH HANDS TIED.

Capone was found later wandering around semiconscious in Newton. His hands were tied behind his back.

Capone reported the robbery to the police of Joy Street Station. Owing to the darkness he was unable to give any detailed description of the men or the woman.

He suspects that the robbers are persons who have patronized his ten room and have studied his habits. He is accustomed to walk from his establishment through Charles to Boylston street most every night after closing.

Capone gained publicity last Fall when he went out on Boston Common and picked up a score or more down and outside and fed them a dinner which he had prepared for Boston University coeds, who had been ordered to cancel a society spread scheduled at his place.

GEORGE J. GOULD IS VERY ILL IN FRANCE

New, March 21 (By The Associated Press).—The condition of George J. Gould of New York, who is ill at a villa near here, was announced today as unchanged.

Real estate buying or selling must be definitely suspended. The American "Real Estate" column, headed by "Real Estate" is suspended.

The American Woolen Company today announced a 12½ per cent. increase in wages in all its mills, effective April 30.

This announcement will affect 35,000 workers. The principal mills of the American Woolen Company are located at Lawrence, but the company, known as the "Wool Trust," has branches and mills in all parts of the country.

The increase comes in the face of a denial made some time ago by the company, when charges of profiteering were made. An official of the company said at the time:

"The profit of this company on the cloth that goes into an average suit of clothes, selling at retail for $100, does not exceed $1.50 per suit. On cheapen grades, one profit per suit is as low as 30 cents."

The president of the American Woolen Company is William M. Wool of Boston. He is a director also in many affiliated and subsidiary mills at Providence, Lawrence, New Bedford and other New England cities.

The American Woolen company is the largest single expansion in the wool manufacturing industry of the world. It has sixty-four plants, most of them in New England, including the Assabet Mill at Maynard, Mass., the largest curved woolen plant in the world, and the immense Wool mill at Lawrence. The annual product of the company totals more than $100,000,000. It had preferred and $20,000,000 of common stock.

After Alroy Newcomb, of Dorchester, had flung his wife bodily out and there about the house, she came to the conclusion that he was somewhat insane, she told Justice Hall in the Suffolk divorce court today.

She was granted a decree on the grounds of cruel and abusive treatment.

Alroy, she said, was going to commit suicide, and you're going to die with me."

She grew so afraid of him that she hid behind furniture when he came around.

The suit was uncontested.

PREDICT WAGE BOOST FOR STEEL WORKERS

New York, March 21.—Opinion prevailed today among independent steel men that leading interests will announce a wage increase shortly after the return from Europe of Judge Elbert Gary of the United States Steel Corporation. The present rate of 25 cents an hour is expected to be increased to 40 cents an hour.

GIRL, INCURABLY ILL, KILLS SELF BY GAS

Mrs. Elida Nyberg, incurably ill, prayed to God to let her die and end her pain. But she was unable to wait for death's slow approach. She was found lifeless today, a suicide by gas, in her tenement at No. 5 Willie court in Lynn. The body was found by Mrs. Charles Pollard of No. 1 Willie court. Gas was leaking from a tube connected with a wall jet. Mrs. Nyberg was fifty-three.

ACCUSED OF STEALING HUSBAND

New York, March 21.—A street quarrel with a jealous woman, in which the young model was pummeled and scratched, preceded by a week the murder of beautiful Dorothy King, "Broadway Butterfly," whose mysterious death has thus far baffled New York's trained investigators.

Detectives retired on that information today as offering another possible clue, of which there have been a vast confusion leading only into blind trails and mazes.

The woman who quarreled with the slain model may have been the wife whose husband Dorothy won away. The police will not divulge her identity.

After this quarrel, Dorothy King drew the cloth of dread closer about her and always after that took a bodyguard with her when she ventured out of her glided cage.

The woman who fought with Dorothy shadowed her out of her identity.

FALES LOVE SUIT SETTLED FOR $25,000

Providence, March 21.—Harnet Hartleigh has $25,000 to console her for the failure of Warren R. Fales to marry her as he had promised. The case was marked off when the aged yachtman agreed to the payment of this sum. The romance of the wealthy East Providence resident and the scrumptious Harriet, who hails from Bangor, Me., began at a spiritualists' camp at Aetha, Me. Fales is of the prominent Fales family of manufacturers and inventors of Rhode Island and has had three wives.—Lottie Ellis of Boston, Katherine Harris, a New York actress, and Mrs. Mamie Filtz of Pawtucket.

BOY, 18, SPURNED, KILLS GIRL, CONFESSES

Patterson, N. J., March 21.—Boys who spurned his attention, Harry Hunt, eighteen, was shot and killed today by Alfred Bonner, also eighteen, in the plant of the Warner Manufacturing Company. Bonner, police say, made a confession.

MODEL ATTACKED IN NEW YORK STREET BY JEALOUS WOMAN

apartment house one afternoon, followed her half a block, overtook her and at once administered a tongue lashing that scared the girl's soul. She called her the stinging name of an estranged woman as she went. She accused her of stealing away the man who loved her and then "drowning him ever."

At length she threw her hands in to Dorothy's hair and drew her gleaming nails across the model's pretty face. Then a policeman arrested them.

Police inspectors investigated the murder assault today to get in touch with Jack Lannigan, the 37-year-old man arrested.

Lannigan, now in Chicago, was a Manhattan man who was arrested with a girl as she went to a Broadway restaurant that he struck her, according to a man who reported to the inspectors.

GIRL FOUGHT DESPERATELY.
Miss Keenan, 22, was charged for her life before she was charged for death. The girl fought desperately, but she was overpowered. The maid saw that her mistress's body was being battered and she tried to come to her aid, but she was overpowered.

That refusal of Miss Keenan to accept a bribe to blackmail "Mr. Marshall or his wife," but "heavy" agent, according to Lannigan, was a possible motive for her attack. The "Broadway incident" was a warning to make him victim of a future game.

Another high light today was information to the authorities that the infamous Doctor Marshall planned to elope with a divorcee in Paris and leave the model.

GIRL MAY BE IN PLOT.
A connection with the actual murder, a startling theory is advanced that a girl may have been in the murder plot.

This girl, who had married bitterly with Miss Keenan, is known to be an adept at the game, the character of attack and self-defense.

One of the model's friends, when the body was found, is said to have been backed as though by a big time wrestler.

The report as to the condition of the girl at the time of the attack, with the assertion of Miss Bradford, Miss Keenan's maid, that the model was humiliated only after a terrific struggle.

Jack Lannigan, with whom the HUB GIRL SETTLES $100,000 LOVE SUIT.

Providence, March 21.—Agreement to settle out of court the $100,000 breach of promise suit brought by Miss Harriet H. Harlow, attractive book buyer, Boston, against Warren M. Fair, nationally known handmaker and composer of East Providence, was reached when the defendant entered the courtroom, falling even to recognize old-time friends.

Miss Harlow, twice married, divorced her second husband in 1912. Mr. Fair, sixty years old, has been married three times, and divorced twice. His third wife, a Powhatan woman, is dead.

HOLD UP FUNERAL AS SISTER IS SOUGHT.
The funeral of Eugene Shannon of No. 517 Harrison avenue, South End, a manager of a Lynn theatre picture house, was held up while efforts were made to find Mrs. Elizabeth Gillis, his sister, that she might attend the burial service.

Miss Gillis is a buyer for Lannon A. Hubbard and was last known to be in Atlantic City at a house top. Neither relatives nor the firm have been able to get in touch with her by phone or telegram. Shannon died Monday. He left no will and his affairs are tangled up.

PIUTES BATTLE UTAH POSSE; ONE SLAIN

Salt Lake City, March 21.—A posse of white settlers of San Juan County, southeastern Utah, today was hot on the trail of a band of renegade Piute Indians who went on the war path at Blaming Monday.

In a clash between the posse and the redskins one young buck known as Joe Bishop's boy was reported killed and two other Indians wounded.

The trouble at Blaming started when authorities arrested Joe Bishop's boy and another young Indian charged with the robbery of a sheep herder's camp. Just before the trial got under way a band of Indians from Allen's Canyon, near Blaming, entered town and started trouble.

The two young Indians were found guilty of robbery, but escaped from sheriff T. E. Oliver, when they overpowered.

With their escape a posse was formed and went to arrest.

There was but one telephone line in Blaming and the Indians cut that, breaking the news. Efforts to establish radio communication with Salt Lake failed.

Old Pugsy, a leading figure in the trouble of past years, is said to be taking part in the present affair.

The Piutes are armed with a variety of weapons and have a large amount of ammunition cached.

The refuse is hauled to a wharf a few miles distant, from whence the reclaimed material is shipped to market.

The earliest form of reclamation to the industry was found at Carbon date, near here, where Elmer Gleason and a fleet of six men were flagging waste out of the old road bed of the defunct gravity railroad at the Delaware and Hudson

Coue's Book

Self Mastery Through
Conscious Autosuggestion
Only Authorized Book by EMILE COUE

How then should parents, and those entrusted with the education of children avoid provoking bad autosuggestions and, on the other hand, influence good autosuggestions?

In dealing with children, always be even-tempered and speak in a gentle but firm tone. In this way they will become obedient without ever having the slightest desire to resist authority.

Above all—above all, avoid harshness and brutality, for there the risk is incurred of influencing an autosuggestion of cruelty accompanied by hate.

Moreover, avoid carefully, in their presence, saying evil of anyone, as too often happens, when, without any deliberate intention, the absent nurse is picked to pieces in the drawing-room.

Inevitably this fatal example will be followed, and may produce later a real catastrophe.

Awaken in them a desire to know the reason of things and a love of Nature, and endeavor to interest them by giving all possible explanations very clearly, in a cheerful good-tempered tone. You must answer their questions pleasantly, instead of checking them with—"What a bother you are, do be quiet, you will learn later."

Never on any account say to a child, "You are lazy and good for nothing" because that gives birth in him to the very faults of which you accuse him.

If a child is lazy and does his tasks badly, you should say to him one day, even if it is not true, "There, this time your work is much better than it generally is. Well done." The child, flattered by the unaccustomed commendation, will certainly work better the next time, and, little by little, thanks to judicious encouragement, will succeed in becoming a real worker.

At all costs avoid speaking of illness before children, as it will certainly create in them bad autosuggestion. Teach them, on the contrary, that health is the normal state of man, and that sickness is an anomaly, a sort of backsliding which may be avoided by living in a temperate, regular way.

'POISON!' CRIES GIRL; 'ALCOHOL!' SAY DOCTORS

Miss Anna Hart and Miss Blanche Wilford, clowns, have opposite rooms to Miss Helen Edgemoor's lodgings at No. 216 Washington street in Lynn.

Two drinks in the morning—"Blanche, Blanche—help—help—poison—poison."

That was Anna shrieking. Blanche tumbled out of bed and into Anna's room.

"Corrosive sublimate," gasped Anna, writhing on her bed. Blanche called Miss Edgemoor, who telephoned Drs. Joslyn and Tucker. Finding their arrival the landlady and Blanche buried an emulsion of mustard water into the wiggling Anna.

"Bromide of potassium," gasped Anna in a moment of forgetfulness. The doctors arrived. They sent Anna to Lynn Hospital. Business of stomach pump.

"Acute alcoholism," said the hospital doctors. "No such a thing," declared Anna later. "I never drank a drop."

And there you are. Anna and Blanche met their fate at a restaurant on Union street Friday because one of the other girls was fired. But they were going back today.

For $39.50

The Extra Pair of Trousers Practically Doubles the Life of the Suit

Men who read the newspapers do not need to be told about the price advances in wool and wool fabrics. Nor is there need to tell them that these advances obviously bring corresponding advances in the cost of clothing.

The moral is—that men's clothing bought at wholesale now costs quite a lot more than when we contracted for these suits last Fall. Also that we, like you, will pay more when our present stock (fortunately large enough for the opening of the season) comes to be replaced.

Under such circumstances, to get a new Spring suit—certified all wool—made by highly reputable men's clothing concerns—and with two pairs of trousers for $39.50—well, perhaps our stock of twice as many as last year may not be enough. But it's all we can get.

POLICE BACK STORY OF DELOREY

Who killed Annie Mullins?
The Boston American today publishes the second installment of Peter Delorey's remarkable story of "trumped-up confession," and the other episode that sent him and Manton to prison "innocent late of eighteen."

By BERT FORD.
"If Mrs. Elizabeth Delorey of 1111 North Main street, who never tried to get on with her life, I worked doing chores with James Manton, had not come forward with her fantastic story a year after the murder, Jim and I would never have been implicated in the Annie Mullins case," Peter Delorey said today.

"Imagine a woman of her temper and queer interest in big murder cases that were being discussed in the newspapers, depending on her memory as to dates and other details over such a long period, and placing the lives of two innocent boys in jeopardy."

"Imagine the police depending on her word instead of ours. And why did she wait twelve months to tell the story to the police?"

MANTON HAD SUED AUNT.
"That was only one of the many strange features of the case. I claim that if James Manton had brought suit against Mrs. Delorey for back pay she never would have involved me, implicated in the Annie Mullins case, a year, she thought I had put Jim up to it."

"If Jim and I had walked from Arlington, Elliptical, as he claimed, on the night of the murder, we would have had to travel from twenty to twenty-five miles through a dreary night. We would have been covered with mud and wet through."

"Jim and I were only seventeen at the time of the murder, March 27, 1918. We were sixteen when arrested on April 2, 1919, and twenty years of age when sentenced on March 2, 1921. Boys of seventeen would not be apt to try to pick up a girl of twenty-seven, or dare to commit such a crime."

NO WEAPON FOUND.
"No weapon was ever found. No men's footprints were discovered in Egle's Field. According to the testimony the only marks were those made by a woman's heel in the soft earth near the embankment."

"Emphasis was placed on the fact that Manton and I could not furnish alibi. What boys of eighteen, suddenly rounded up by the police, and played against each other, could tell that they had been doing on a certain day or night a year and one week before? And they pretended to have been taken on a cruelty to animal charge."

POLICE SPLIT OVER CASE.
"A man friend of Annie Mullins was suspected but dropped. One case dragged a year and then after Manton and I were arrested, James Manton, John A. St. Morrey and Mrs. Delorey and her son, Peter, were taken on back wages to the city jail. The suit for $11,607, was entered in Municipal Court in Boston, October 12, 1919. It was seven months after Annie Mullins had been murdered."

"There was a split between two police factions in Cambridge between the police and the St. Morrey faction. Captain Patrick J. Hurley led the police faction and Captain Michael Nollan, Officer James D. Russell and other officials believed Manton and me innocent. Captain Hurley was one of my staunchest friends. He came to Egle Prison, took statements from Manton and me, and helped me obtain my parole."

SEEN BY NO ONE.
"No mention was made of the trial of the fact that it was strange nobody saw me in North Cambridge on the night of the murder if Manton and I had been there. I had lived in that neighborhood nine years before moving to Rossmore and was known by many in the vicinity of Peter Street."

"There was another important fact that was overlooked. It related to the time of Mrs. Mullins' death. The so-called confession made to the police in 1919 and Manton had killed the girl in 1918. Prof. Von Jagern, for whom Mrs. Mullins was worked, testified that the girl left the sugar table about 1918."

FLAW IN "CONFESSION."
"The medical examiner testified that she died within one or two hours at most of the time she ate her evening meal. That would make it not later than 9 o'clock, which shows my statement to the police as to the hour of the murder to be false."

"These are only random details, but they were important and no attention was paid to them. No case interests were concerned. Now it is that so-called confession made by the new lawyer which I remained to handle my petting and a pardon show that it was admitted on page 380 of the official transcript of the trial proceedings that Gordon and Mrs. Delorey related the story to the police."

"Page 347 states that the police told the story to Peter. Page 328 states that the story was first told to Peter."

to Peter. Lieutenant Gordon and Mrs. Delorey wrote to lawyers and newspapers about her case and that she was eager to win rewards. (To Be Continued Tomorrow)

IRISH BISHOP'S HOME IS BURNED
Dublin, March 21.—The Dublin Minister of Home Affairs today declared that the fire which destroyed the home of the Irish Bishop, Dr. O'Donnell, was caused by a bomb thrown by a man who was seen to enter the building.

State government would abide by the promise that those of the Irish land and women arrested in England and brought to Dublin for military charges, who wished to be tried in England, would be sent back. The house of the Catholic bishop, Dr. O'Donnell, at Dublin, was burned to the ground. The place was attacked and set on fire by three armed men.

IT'S A HABIT IN NEW YORK

Welterweight Champion Mickey Walker has been suspended by New York State Athletic Commission, Mickey boxed with Charley Nash at Buffalo on March 14 but their ring exhibition did not satisfy Nash's board under the name of Fitzsimmons.

VETERANS MARQUARD AND WATSON SHOW UP WELL

BRVES SURE TO GOOD JUDGING GODS

By NICK FLATLEY

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 21.—(Continued from page 10.)—The veterans of the war, who are now in the ring, are a good deal of a sight to see. They are a good deal of a sight to see. They are a good deal of a sight to see.

But the old baseball still has the wigwag habit of tricking out of the Braves' gloves in the crucial spot. It's one of those things, apparently, and must be taken before the game here will admit that the team has really been rebuilt.

The old baseball still has the wigwag habit of tricking out of the Braves' gloves in the crucial spot. It's one of those things, apparently, and must be taken before the game here will admit that the team has really been rebuilt.

A couple of dropped throws in the eighth inning, following a double throw at third base by John Watson, put the side under a position that, up to that point, had been very sharp and snappy. John, of course, is not a new player, but he is a new player, and every one in a while a veteran has to do some of that stuff.

Nate Lewis Says Sweet "Charity" Got the Jack

"Who got the Jack that Jock Malone and Johnny Karr failed to receive for their bout at the Armory A.A. in Boston?"

That's the query the Boston American voiced to Nate Lewis, one of Malone's managers. And Nate replied:

"The Armory Club told me they gave Malone's money to charity. Of course, they told me how kind they would have been to have paid Malone, only for the ruling of the Boxing Commission. They offered me $150 for Jack's expenses, but I told Matchmaker Alex McLean that I didn't accept charity."

"I am waiting to hear just what charity got Malone's money. Possibly it went the Benevolent Order of Boxing Promoters, otherwise known as the Armory A.A."

BROOKLYN SO BAD THAT CELLAR LOOKS SURE

By THOMAS L. CUMMISKEY.

Clearwater, Fla., March 21.—Wilbert Robinson is attempting to make something out of very little at all with the Brooklyn club.

He is as patient as they come. He is wise in the wisdom of many long arduous campaigns as a player and manager. He will need all he has in every way to do much with the Dodgers from all indications.

Were it not for pitchers, at which he is a wonder in development, and the Dodgers into the cellar for the final next October.

"I don't like to be on a club way down in the 'k,'" Robbie says. "I've been on nine pennant winners in my time. As a matter of fact, I hope to get somewhere this year. The boys all seem eager to play the game and we may get something out of them."

He looks forward to the season to offer. The present situation, in no sense, warrants it. Unless new-come stars, something about the manner of "Mona Lisa," it may be much worse than last year, when Brooklyn's record was 100-54, and it was in each place, such as team batting and fifth in fielding.

Robbie is going along uncomplainingly, as usual, trying to do the best he can, and that has been mighty good always, everything considered.

Infidel Is Doubtful With Only One Yet.

The infidel is doubtful, with only one veteran, Jimmy Johnston, at short, and three rookies likely for the other positions. Jacques Fournier, hard hitting first baseman, formerly with the Cardinals, and Andy Knicker, who did well at third in his first year, last season, are hold-outs.

Fournier wants $1,000 more than he was offered, and Knicker, who has been offered $4,000 and $1,500 extra if he plays 75 games. But he wants $5,000 flat.

Robbie is frank in saying he would like these players with him.

IF YOU MAKE ANY BREAKS AT PROFESSOR DOPE'S DINNER PARTY TONIGHT, I'LL BREAK EVERY BONE IN YOUR BODY.

HAVE YOU ANY MORE PLEASANT THINGS TO TELL ME?

WOULD I LIKE TO ASK A QUESTION, PROFESSOR? ARE YOU AN EVOLUTIONIST?

PARTIALLY YES, AND PARTIALLY NO. GENERALLY SPEAKING, I'M A DARWINIST.

NOW I'D LIKE TO ASK A QUESTION, PROFESSOR. DO YOU BELIEVE IN TRANSMIGRATION?

CERTAINLY. I HAVE WRITTEN ON THAT SUBJECT.

PERHAPS YOU WOULD ASK A QUESTION TO ASK, MR. JIGGS?

YES, OH! WHEN DO WE EAT?

"DEAR, Mr. Millionaire," said the man in the tuxedo, "I've returned from week-end afternoon."

"What's the matter, my boy?" replied the host, "is your great mother dead?"

"No," said the man in the tuxedo, "I'm just a little tired. I've been working with the poor and needy waiting to be buried."

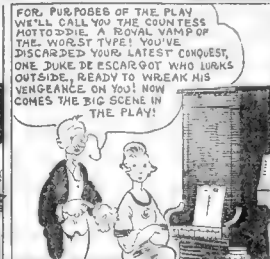

"I'm going up to the ball game tonight," said Mr. Millionaire, "and if I want to go, I want to go with a first-class ticket."

"I'll see you at the ball game," said the man in the tuxedo, "and if I want to go, I want to go with a first-class ticket."

By Vicente Blasco Ibañez

"There, there and there!" There were three rapid, lively glances that only looked for a moment and three kisses that made Luis think that he never had felt one in all his life, since he never had experienced the quivering that swept his body from head to foot.

"There, there and there!"

"Enough, enough, another time, you know! For the present I am worried again. I am afraid to enter my home. I feel terror and hope. Oh, now that I may receive any moment! Tell me, do you really think that, nothing has happened to me? Do you think he may come back?"

Lots of Coal Now

Don't Wait Until Next Spring

Copyright, 1923, Real Commerce

It is announced, with Spring approaching, that the coal output is about equal to the demand. It is expected, very reasonably, that by next Fall the dear public will have forgotten all about this past Winter of coal mine robbery, of trying to burn slate and other kinds of stones and coal dust. Next Fall the public will be ready for another Winter of exploitation.

The majority of the people will forget, of course.

But enough will remember to make some difference in the voting at the next national election. They will remember that the mines were allowed to charge what they pleased, ship as much rock and slate as they pleased, and that the railroad without any rebate were allowed to furnish the most inefficient, miserable, inadequate service.

The people cannot get at the railroads or the coal mines, for they are well protected. But they can, once in a while, with their votes, get at the government that does the protecting.

La Follette's Real Service

He'll Save Us Some Money

Copyright, 1923, Real Commerce

La Follette's fight against extortionate prices for gasoline and the criminal conspiracy that gives corporations the power to tax citizens of the United States without limit will not produce 100 per cent. results, of course. But La Follette's attack will undoubtedly cause the oil combination to moderate its fury and tax the people less heavily than it would otherwise have done.

For that thanks are due La Follette.

It is refreshing to hear one Senator, in a country where oil men, coal men, sugar men and a hundred others, rob the people as much as they choose, saying something energetically on the people's side. It doesn't happen often.

Contrasts in Legislature

It is always interesting to study character wherever contrasts present themselves. It is particularly interesting to study character in a legislative assembly where these contrasts affect the public interest.

In the House of Representatives this year there are three coal dealers, an undertaker and a policeman who lost his job in consequence of the police strike in Boston.

There were also three bills before the Legislature affecting the interests of all three of these groups. One was the bill penalizing coal dealers who sold bad coal to the public; another was to increase the pay of Dr. George Burgess Magrath, Medical Examiner of Boston, and the third was a bill providing for the reinstatement of a former member of the Boston police force.

The way these men voted on these questions shows a different idea of public obligation, which is most interesting. All the coal dealers voted against penalizing crooked coal dealers. The undertaker voted in favor of increasing Dr. Magrath's salary. The possibilities of "thrift following fawning" in this case are obvious. But the ex-policeman, before voting, asked the Speaker whether he thought that it was proper to vote on a question which affected him so intimately, and he took the disinterested judgment of the Speaker.

Now the gentlemen in the coal business and in the undertaker's business may not have intended to protect their personal interests by their vote. We do not at all contend that they did. But a public official should be like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. He must not only always be right, but he must always SEEM TO BE right. He must never, if he can possibly avoid it, do anything that requires an explanation or that tends to make people receive a doubt in his favor. There should be no doubts if he can be avoided.

State Should Pay Counsel

There ought to be some method by which poor men charged with murder could select their own counsel, the State paying for his services.

The question is not so much the right of the individual charged with the crime punishable by death, but the right of the State to be protected against the horrible blunder of taking the life of a human being who may be innocent. The State wants to be far more careful to see that the evidence IN FAVOR of a man charged with murder is properly presented than to see that the evidence AGAINST him is properly presented. There is no comparison between the evil of killing an innocent man and the evil of letting a guilty one go. The State ought to see that the defense of a man charged with murder, the consequence of whose conviction means that the State must take his life, is protected with at least as much ability as he is prosecuted.

The State ought to leave nothing undone to protect a man whom it may be obliged wrongly to kill if he is not properly protected.

Let Us Have Peace

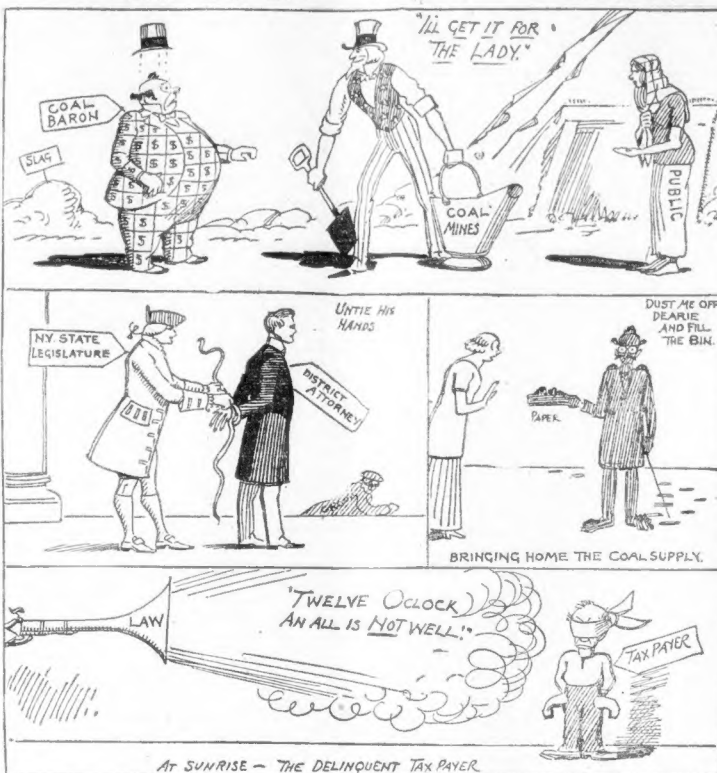

We earnestly hope that some compromise may be effected between the mill workers and mill owners in this State in order that another industrial war may be avoided at the very door of prosperity.

If a modus vivendi can be reached for the present in order to let the prosperity which is knocking at our door be ushered in every citizen of the State will be grateful. If the owners and the workmen appreciate their responsibility to do everything they can to patch up a peace, perhaps we can have peace even if it is a "painted peace."

WOMAN RULE PLANNED IN EVANSTON

EVANSTON, Ill., March 21.—

This little city, nationally known for educational institutions, pretty girls, anti-"calketer" regulations and, more recently, landit, "abuse," may shortly pass into the hands of a new regime. Evanston may become a city like that ancient land of the Amazons—ruled by its women.

Women of this city, including many of the socially elite, are seriously considering a move to take over the reins of municipal authority. If they succeed, it was stated, their theory of the present political movement shall be that "Municipal government is merely municipal housekeeping."

MRS. Anna Rex Gross, wife of wealthy Evanston attorney, has assumed leadership in the present political move by women of little. With her help we had nothing left for clothes. We would greatly appreciate anything in this line or in the line of clothing.

ED. NOTE—Her address will be sent you. Thank you.

Check Speed Accidents

Editor Boston American:

There is a way to prevent speed accidents, and it does not lie along the usual course of fines and imprisonment, which have proven so inadequate as a means for preventing speeding accidents.

Every auto should be equipped with a speed control device having a dial face and a movable pointer at the rear of the car. The speed of the car is to be controlled by the movement of the pointer across the dial face.

In passing through a community where the speed limit is, say, 20 miles per hour, the driver must stop his car and go around to the back of it and move the pointer to "20." Then his car cannot go faster than twenty miles per hour.

Lots of trouble you say? Well, that's the trouble caused by speeding accidents. MONROE HUNSHIVE.

De Valera and O'Connell

Editor Boston American:

It is with sorrow and shame that I read what Daniel T. O'Connell said of Ireland and De Valera. He said that De Valera in the last two years had done more harm to Ireland than any leader Ireland ever had. The man that did Ireland the most injury was Daniel O'Connell.

In 1846 the leading patriots of Ireland went to O'Connell and said to him in substance, "Go to it, O'Connell, now or never." Ireland at the time had a population of about a million and a half, while the population of England was only a little over eleven million.

But O'Connell said no, that Ireland's freedom was not worth the shedding of one drop of blood. England threw a sop now and then to keep the people quiet, while O'Connell thought it was his oratory that was doing it.

When England refused to let the line of the family, it broke his heart and he died the same year as O'Connell. PATRICK MURPHY, North Andover.

Words from the Lips of Wise Men

A WISE man should have money in his head, but not in his heart.

Canning pays no regard to virtue and is but the usual of wisdom.

A fool can ask more questions in an hour than seven wise men can answer in a year.

It is money alone that enriches the mind by preserving what our labor and industry do collect.

Many a man thinks admirably well who has a poor utterance, while others have a charming manner of speech, but their thoughts are trifling.

One great reason why many children abandon themselves wholly to idle sports and trifles away all their time for idleness is because they have found their curiosity balked.

Twenty-four Little Black Gods

Three thousand years from now a gypsy child, buried at Washington, is expected to smooch her jeweled robes, adjust her ornaments, breakfast at dawn on the rich fruits and meats beside her, climb forth and begin another life.

Old religions and new cling to the hope of a hereafter. Faith lingers to the stars and nether regions before the shepherds' mists.

A HANDY UMBRELLA FOR ONE OF LABOR'S RAINY DAYS

By Herbert Kaufman

STATISTICIANS are painting rainbows on the ticker tape. We are managing very well despite the slump in foreign buying. These United States aren't carried in Europe's market basket.

The latest crop reports show an increase of two billion dollars before the produce.

American mills in the past twenty-four months bought double the amount of cotton they used in 1922.

Last year we celebrated a record production of automobiles—and sold them, too.

Steel mills are running within 20 per cent. of capacity and the dividend battle is again general in the land.

In 1922 New York had 140 per cent. fewer strikes and one-half as many unionists living on their savings. Conditions are improving every week.

Secretary Hoover finds so much employment that he recommends to the President a suspension of government construction. It's a good idea to save those contracts for one of building's rainy days.

Prosperity will feel more assured with such an umbrella handy.

Capital Finds an Unexpected Champion

Overcast, business, Janus-like, wears two faces. One smiles fondly upon Rome and the other frowns reprovingly at London.

British labor leaders, who seem surprised to discover that the King and Queen are very genteel folk, now challenge the capitalistic system. Socialist members of Parliament will advocate government ownership and operation of industries, control of distribution and all the trimmings.

You will note that pound sterling didn't drop many points at the news.

The moment such a movement becomes half way serious every other party in the Commons will bury differences, unite and squish the proceedings.

Every time the guinea looks at the rouble Bolshevism gets another national kick.

Mussolini, less and less socialist as he grows familiar with his job, promises to cancel government monopolies and establish open competition in Italy.

Even a few months' study of practical economics convinces the Premier that there can be no development except through initiative and individualism.

All human experience strengthens the conviction of man's right to have and hold what he fairly owns.

Ambition Is Not an Altruist

Progress must seek out merit, exert and reward it. Nothing else will prevent universal don't-give-a-damnism.

Equality before opportunity is one thing and equal division of realized opportunity's quite another.

The tree may belong to the State, but those who climb it and gather the fruits can't be expected to divide exactly with the louts who won't trouble to climb.

Most persons aren't purposeful or intensive or persistent. Majorities, since first recollection, have been lazy and hazy.

So the men who wear no clocks in their minds and set no limit upon effort must have fairway and guarantees of doing so.

Anybody who finds or founds a common benefit and devotes all his time to its management is entitled to a due share of the resultant wealth.

Democracy is only entitled to intervene when he over-estimates his share.

They're Likely to Get Orders From Washington

Mussolini promises to go far—if he doesn't go too far, particularly in America. Italians, naturalized subjects included, are forming Black Shirts under the direction of Rome, which instructs Chicago Fascisti to take orders from New York.

They're likely also to receive orders from Washington. Even so, these ardent young gentlemen are determined to save us from Bolshevism and anarchy, we must refuse their kindly services.

Citizens of the United States are prevented by their oath of allegiance to pledge service to foreign organizations.

A slight detail of our Constitution that Ambassador Cretan seems to forget when he explains that it is far better to control the situation from headquarters than permit local guidance to the groups which might bring them into conflict with this government.

The conflict's here right now.

Spartan Life a La Francaise

A new cult established over Paris embodies all the stand and practices of spirituality and several improvements.

Its devotees wear coarse robes, eat rough food—and occupy a palace in an enchanted wood.

Spartan regimen rather incongruously abetted by rare Oriental carpets and fountains that squirt different perfumes to the accompaniment of changing, colored waters, while they sit about on deep divans and languorously listen to the master.

Poor, foolish little Marie Antoinette played milkmaid at Versailles in this kind of society.
